

Foreword

This volume is constructed on the pattern of its predecessors. As with them, I am extremely grateful to the authors, who have managed to write excellent and selective surveys within the tight constraints of the space allowed. The production of one more volume in the series has been authorised; I hope the series will continue to have life and value, but this depends on people buying the books.

E.A.V. Ebsworth

