

Not all chemists wear white coats

Chemistry and the chemical sciences can take you anywhere. They could see you rafting through the Amazon, collecting valuable scientific information as an environmentalist or searching for a cure for cancer.

Or perhaps you may prefer to become a marine chemist working in the world's oceans, studying life beneath the surface. Whatever you want to do - chemistry can help you do it.

That's because chemistry can enable you to get into almost any career you care to think of. From law, aviation and art, to fashion, sales and city dealing - the list is endless.

Surprised? You shouldn't be. Chemistry and the chemical sciences can open up a whole world of possibilities to you. Find out more about careers using chemistry by writing to The Education Department, Royal Society of Chemistry, Burlington House, Piccadilly, London W1J 0BA or email education@rsc.org
