

"REACH, a time to plan"

Chemicals Northwest in partnership with the Royal Society of Chemistry
4th June 2014 - Heath Business Park, Runcorn

This conference is different! This conference will draw out the practical aspects of complying with this complicated regulation. It will highlight the consequences for businesses if they don't get it right and will provide some solutions for overcoming the barriers to compliance.

The aims of the conference include helping you to understand what the implications will be for your business as you go about ensuring compliance. They also include key technical aspects such as: who has to register and when? What are the obligations of non-registrants in the supply chain? And how will downstream users be affected?

As well as informative presentations from regulatory service providers, there will be speakers from industry who will share their first hand experience of dealing with REACH. These case studies will provide practical information about how companies can ensure compliance. The expectations placed on downstream users to ensure that upstream companies and fulfilling their requirements will also be highlighted.

Sources of support and information will be covered as well as the next steps and timelines. There will also be a presentation from the competent authority which will cover their current and future priorities. Finally, looking to 2018 should be on all companies radar. What are those factors that need to be considered when planning for this stage?
