McBain Medal Award Meeting

Tuesday 8 December 2015, SCI, London, UK

Synopsis

Professor Rachel O' Reilly from the University of Warwick has been awarded the 2014 McBain medal for her pioneering research in novel polymeric nanoparticles, responsive materials and controlled self-assembly.

The 2015 McBain medal has been awarded to Professor Giuseppe Battaglia of University College, London, for his work in developing novel functional polymers for biomedical applications, design rules for self-assembly of soft-matter and the development of colloidal systems for drug delivery.

Both winners will be presented with their award at the McBain meeting on Tuesday 8 December at SCI in Belgrave Square, London.

Confirmed Speakers

In addition to the two McBain medal award winners, there will be talks from the following speakers:

Prof Steve Armes, University Sheffield, UK
Prof Stefan Bon, University of Warwick, UK
Dr Oscar Ces, Imperial College London, UK
Prof Tony Ryan, University Sheffield, UK
