

Studying for an undergraduate degree in the chemical sciences? Membership will help with everything from course work to career planning. Find out more at rsc.li/student

If you're a recent chemical science graduate, or you can demonstrate experience or training at an equivalent level, go to rsc.li/amrsc for more about becoming an Associate Member

If you've built up at least 3 years' experience since graduating, with the key professional skills to match, then becoming a Member is for you. Go to rsc.li/mrsc

If you can show evidence of substantial career progression and achievement in promoting any field of the chemical sciences, go to rsc.li/frsc to find out more about becoming a Fellow

Professional recognition
Registered Science
Technician (RSciTech)

Professional recognition
Registered Scientist (RSci)

Professional recognition
Chartered status

If you have no formal qualifications (yet) but are passionate about the chemical sciences and want to be part of our worldwide community, go to rsc.li/affiliate

Find your place in our community

Wherever you are in your relationship with the chemical sciences, there's a membership option to suit you. They follow your career path, so when you advance, you can change your category to match.