The graph shows the comparison between a theoretical and an experimental X-ray diffraction pattern. The black line represents the theoretical pattern, while the red line represents the experimental pattern. The peaks are plotted against 2Theta, a measure of the angle in a crystallographic diffraction experiment.