

Raman on a disc: High-quality Raman Spectroscopy in an Open Channel on a Centrifugal Microfluidic Disc

J. W. Martin^{1,2,4,5}, M.K. Nieuwoudt^{1,2,4}, M. Vargas^{1,2,4,5}, O. Bodley^{2,4,5}, T.S. Yohendiran^{2,4}, R. Oosterbeek^{2,4,5}, D. E. Williams^{1,4} and M. C. Simpson^{†1,2,3,4,5}

¹*School of Chemical Sciences, The University of Auckland, Auckland, NZ*

²*The Photon Factory, The University of Auckland, Auckland, NZ*

³*Department of Physics, The University of Auckland, Auckland, NZ*

⁴*The MacDiarmid Institute for Advanced Materials and Nanotechnology, NZ*

⁵*The Dodd Walls Centre for Photonic and Quantum Technologies, NZ*

Supplementary information

A bird's eye view of a segment of the disc showing more clearly the open channel design is given below (Figure S1).

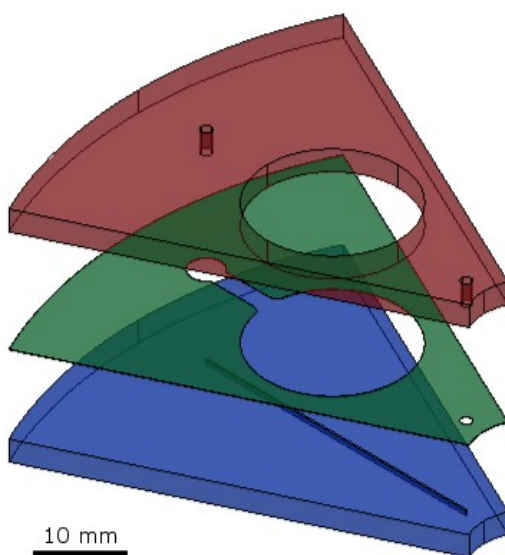

Figure S1. Bird's eye view of a segment of the disc showing the design of the different layers around the open channel.