Supporting Information for

Supercritical fluid assisted biotemplating synthesis of Si-O-C microspheres from microalgaes for advanced Li-ion batteries

Yang Xia,a Ruyi Fang,a Zhen Xiao,a Luoyuan Ruan,a Rongjun Yan,c Hui Huang,a Chu Liang,a Yongping Gan,a Jun Zhang,a Xinyong Tao,a,* and Wenkui Zhanga,* a College of Materials Science and Engineering, Zhejiang University of Technology, Hangzhou, 310014, China.

b College of Materials Science and Engineering, China Jiliang University, Hangzhou, 310018, China.
c Ocean College, Zhejiang University of Technology, Hangzhou, 310014, China.

* Corresponding authors: tao@zjut.edu.cn (XY Tao); msechem@zjut.edu.cn (WK Zhang).

Figure S1 The particle size distributions of microalgae carbon and Si-O-C microspheres.

Figure S2 HRTEM and corresponding diffraction pattern images of microalgae carbon and Si-O-C microspheres.
Figure S3 The electrochemical properties comparison of various Si-O-C materials prepared by different methods.

References

