SUPPORTING INFORMATION

Mesoporous carbon soft-templated from lignin nanofiber networks: microphase separation boosts supercapacitance in conductive electrodes

Mariko Ago*, Maryam Borghei1, Johannes S. Haataja2, Orlando J. Rojas1,2*

1Bio-Based Colloids and Materials and Centre of Excellence on “Molecular Engineering of Biosynthetic Hybrid Materials Research” (HYBER), Department of Forest Products Technology, Aalto University, FIN-00076, Espoo, Finland
2Molecular Materials, Department of Applied Physics, Aalto University, FIN-00076, Espoo Finland.

(a)
Figure S1 Nitrogen sorption isotherms of Mat 3 (a), Powder (b) and Solid film (c).

Figure S2. Raman spectra for the carbon nanofiber mat, Mat 1, 2, and 3 and the Powder sample (obtained upon carbonization at 900 °C).