Supplementary Materials

Sand/carbon composites as low-cost lithium storage materials with superior electrochemical performance

Yangfeng Wang,† Luoting Zhou,† Chu Liang,* Jun Zhang, Hui Huang, Yongping Gan, Yang Xia, Xinyong Tao, Wenkui Zhang*

College of Materials Science and Engineering, Zhejiang University of Technology, Hangzhou 310014, People’s Republic of China. E-mail: eliang@zjut.edu.cn; msechem@zjut.edu.cn.

† These authors contributed equally.
Fig. S1 TG curves of PS heated at a rate of 5 °C min⁻¹ under Ar atmosphere.

Fig. S2 Cycling performance of sand/carbon composite with 12 wt.% carbon at different temperature.
Fig. S3 SEM images of the electrodes discharged/charged 200 cycles. (a) sand/carbon composite with 2 wt.% carbon; (b) sand/carbon composite with 5.5 wt.% carbon; (c) sand/carbon composite with 12 wt.% carbon.