Supporting information

Enhanced Hydrogen Generation by Cocatalytic Ni and NiO Nanoparticles Loaded on Graphene Oxide Sheets

By Abiye Kebede Agegnehu¹, Chun-Jern Pan¹, John Rick¹, Jyh-Fu Lee³, Wei-Nien Su², and Bing-Joe Hwang¹,³,*

¹NanoElectrochemistry Laboratory, Department of Chemical Engineering, National Taiwan University of Science and Technology, Taipei 106, Taiwan.

²NanoElectrochemistry Laboratory, Graduate Institute of Applied Science and Technology, National Taiwan University of Science and Technology, Taipei 106, Taiwan.

³National Synchrotron Radiation Research Center, Hsinchu 30076, Taiwan.

*Corresponding author: bjh@mail.ntust.edu.tw
Fig. S1. SEM images of (a) layered structure of pristine graphite (PG) layers; (b) exfoliated GO flowers; (c) Plot of $(\alpha E)^2$ against photon energy $E$ for GO.

Fig. S2. Raman spectra of PG and GO