HIV in 2012 and the future: We will all be involved in patients' care

Royal Pharmaceutical Society, London
Thursday 8 March 2012

HIV is now very much a chronic disease. More and more, all healthcare professionals will participate in the care of HIV positive patients, who are staying healthy but inevitably ageing.

Would you like to gain up to date knowledge on how HIV is now treated and scenarios you may face in your practice? The event provides an introduction to HIV, where we are in 2012, how the face of HIV is changing and gives the opportunity to discuss practical issues with a team of experts.

By the end of the course you will understand:

- How we are managing HIV in 2012
- The issues surrounding testing and diagnosis of HIV
- How to recognise potentially undiagnosed HIV in primary care
- How ageing and HIV interplay
- How to deal with common age related comorbidity in patients with HIV
- Acquire knowledge you will be able to apply to day-to-day consultations with HIV positive patients.
