Berkelium is produced in special nuclear reactors. Only milligrams are made over several months.

The half-life of berkelium’s most common isotope, Bk-249, is 330 days. It decays to californium-249.

Berkelium is used as a target to synthesise heavier elements by bombarding it with ions of other elements.