

A novel automatic method for the measurement of mercury vapour in ambient air, and comparison of uncertainty with established semiautomatic and manual methods

Andrew S. Brown<sup>*,1</sup>, Richard J. C. Brown<sup>1</sup>, Matthew A. Dexter<sup>2</sup>, Warren T. Corns<sup>2</sup>
and Peter B. Stockwell<sup>2</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> Analytical Science Division, National Physical Laboratory, Teddington, Middlesex, TW11 0LW, UK.

<sup>2</sup> PS Analytical, Arthur House, Crayfields Industrial Estate, Orpington, Kent, BR5
3HP, UK

* Corresponding author:

Andrew S. Brown, tel.: +44 20 8943 6831, fax: +44 20 8614 0448, e-mail address:

andrew.brown@npl.co.uk

Fig. A Diagrammatic representation of the ‘bell-jar’ calibration vessel.

Fig. B Hierarchies of the input equations that form the full measurement equations.

