

Supporting Information: Strings and Stripes Formed by a Protein System Interacting via a Directional Patch Attraction

Weimin Li,† Maxim Morin,† Emil Gustavsson,† Björn A. Persson,‡ Mikael Lund,‡
and Malin Zackrisson Oskolkova<sup>*,†</sup>

Division of Physical Chemistry, Lund University, POB 124, 22100 Lund, Sweden, and

Division of Theoretical Chemistry, Lund University, POB 124, 22100 Lund, Sweden

E-mail: malin.zackrisson@fkem1.lu.se

---

*To whom correspondence should be addressed

†Division of Physical Chemistry, Lund University, POB 124, 22100 Lund, Sweden

‡Division of Theoretical Chemistry, Lund University, POB 124, 22100 Lund, Sweden

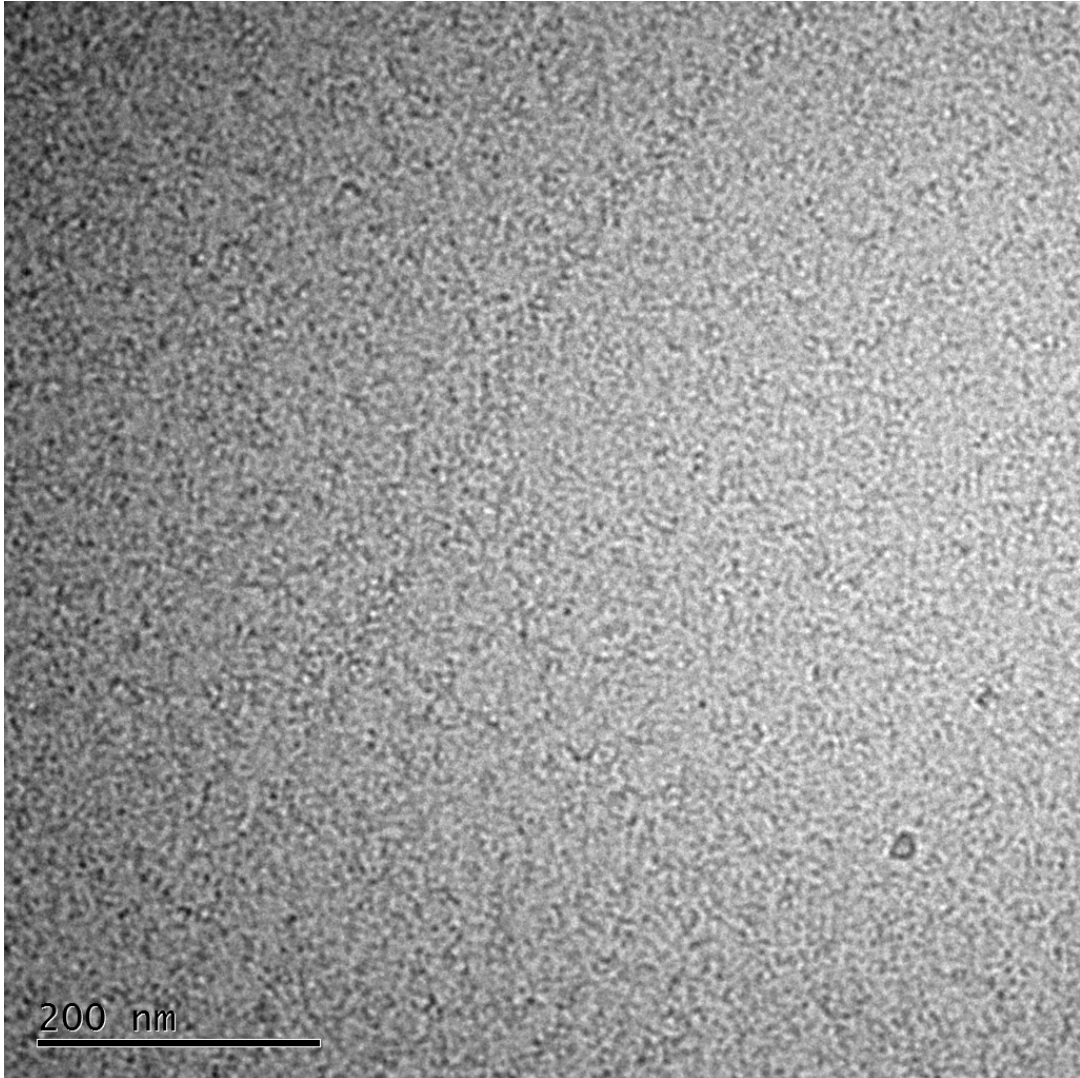

Figure 1: Cryo-TEM image of lactoferrin strings at protein concentration of 80 mg/mL at ionic strength 35 mM and pH 7.

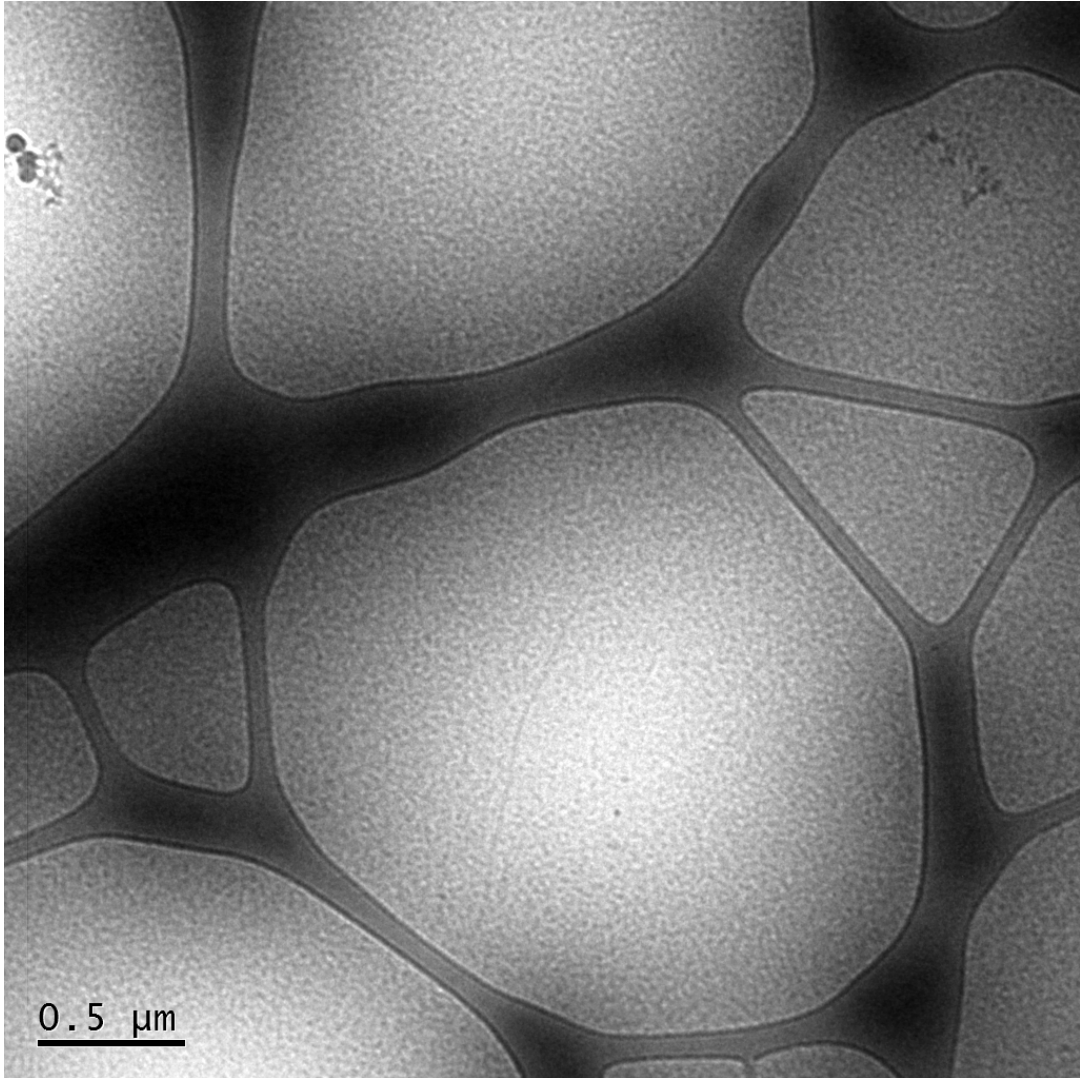

Figure 2: Cryo-TEM image of lactoferrin strings at protein concentration of 80 mg/mL at ionic strength 35 mM and pH 7.