

Supplementary Material (ESI) for Lab on a Chip

Finger-Powered Agglutination Lab Chip with CMOS Image Sensing for Rapid Point-of-Care Diagnosis Applications

Chung Hsiang Lu,^a Ting-Sheng Shih,^a Po-Chen Shih,^a Gaurav Prashant Pendharkar,^a Cheng-En Liu,^c Chi-Kuan Chen,^b Long Hsu,^c Hwan-You Chang,^d Chia-Ling Yang^a and Cheng-Hsien Liu^{a*}

^a Department of Power Mechanical Engineering, National Tsing Hua University, Hsinchu City 30013, Taiwan, R.O.C.

^b MacKay Memorial Hospital, New Taipei City, Taiwan, R.O.C

^c Department of Electrophysics, National Chiao-Tung University, Hsinchu, Taiwan 300, R.O.C.

^d Institute of molecular medicine, National Tsing Hua University, Hsinchu, Taiwan 300, R.O.C.

Video. Video S1 demonstrates and characterizes finger-powered pressure actuator, S2 demonstrates the feature of plasma separation membrane, and S3 demonstrates the full function of finger-powered agglutination lab chip.