

Supporting Information for

Chem. Commun.

Highly effective NO decomposition by in situ removing inhibitor oxygen using an oxygen transporting membrane

Heqing Jiang^a, Lei Xing^a, Oliver Czuprat^a, Haihui Wang^{a,b,*}, Steffen Schirrmeister^c,
Thomas Schiestel^d, and Jürgen Caro^{a,*}

^a*Institute of Physical Chemistry and Electrochemistry, Leibniz University of Hannover, Callinstr. 3A, D-30167 Hannover, Germany*

^b*School of Chemistry and Chemical Engineering, South China University of Technology, Guangzhou, 510640, PR China*

^c*Uhde GmbH, Friedrich-Uhde-Str. 15, D-44141 Dortmund, Germany*

^d*Fraunhofer Institute of Interfacial Engineering and Biotechnology (IGB), Nobelstr 12, D-70569 Stuttgart, Germany*

* Corresponding author.

E-mail address: juergen.caro@pci.uni-hannover.de; hhwang@scut.edu.cn

 The authors gratefully acknowledge the financial support of the BMBF for the project 03C0343A SynMem under the auspices of ConNeCat.

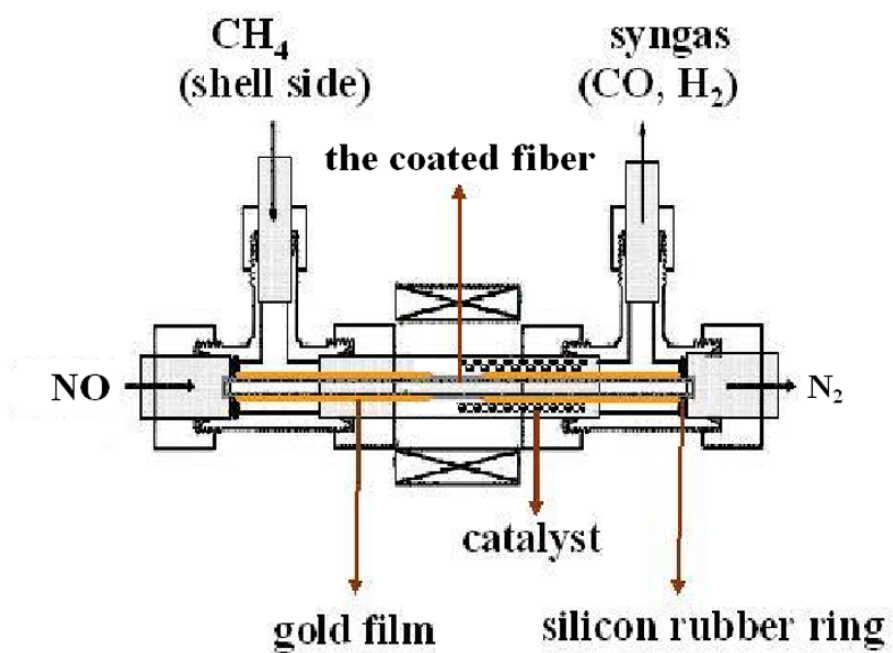

Figure S1 Schematic diagram of the membrane reactor used in this work