

This perspective deviates from exclusively focusing on structural features of actinide-containing metal-organic frameworks (An-MOFs) and pivots toward the prospect of An-MOFs as avant-garde materials with an emphasis on their physicochemical properties.