

Supporting Information

Facile and scale-up transformation of Cu nanoparticles into high aspect ratio Cu oxide nanowires in methanol

Minkyu Kang,^{a†} Minjun Bae,^{a†} Sumin Park,^a Hwichan Hong,^a Taehyun Yoo,^a Yonghwan Kim,^a
Myeongseok Jang,^a Young-Seok Kim,^{*b} Yuanzhe Piao^{*a,c}

^a Department of Applied Bioengineering, Graduate School of Convergence Science and Technology, Seoul National University, 16229 Suwon-si, Gyeonggi-do, Republic of Korea.

^b Korea Electronics Technology Institute (KETI), 13509 Seongnam-si, Gyeonggi-do, Republic of Korea

^c Advanced Institutes of Convergence Technology, Seoul National University, 16229 Suwon-si, Gyeonggi-do, Republic of Korea

†These authors contributed equally to this work.

Corresponding author:

Prof. Yuanzhe Piao: E-mail : parkat9@snu.ac.kr

Dr. Young-Seok Kim: E-mail : vis4freedom@keti.re.kr

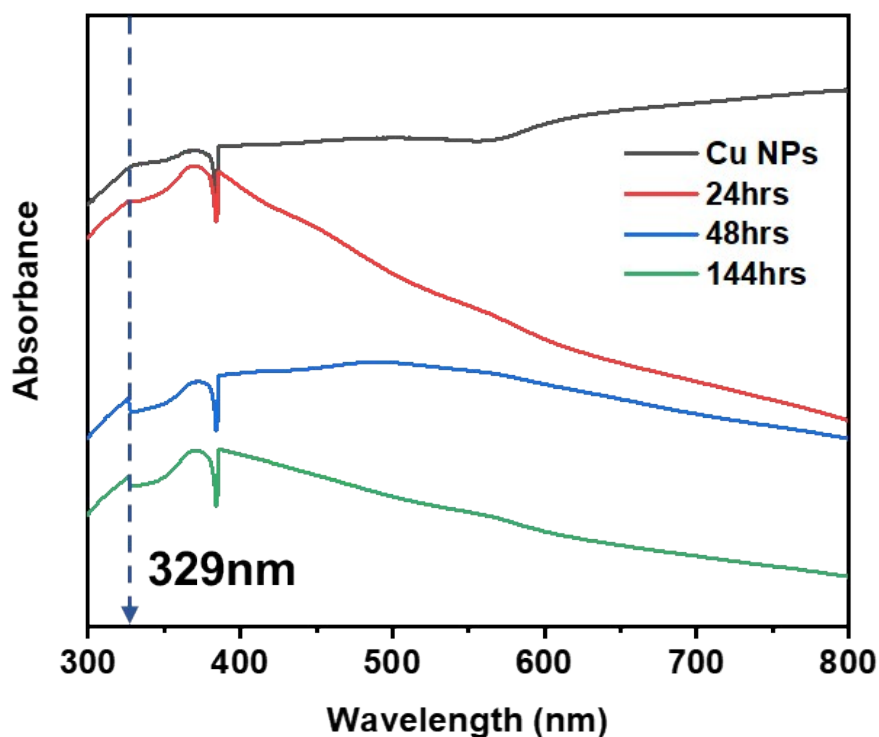

Fig. S1 Aging time effect on UV-visible absorption of Cu nanoparticles in methanol.

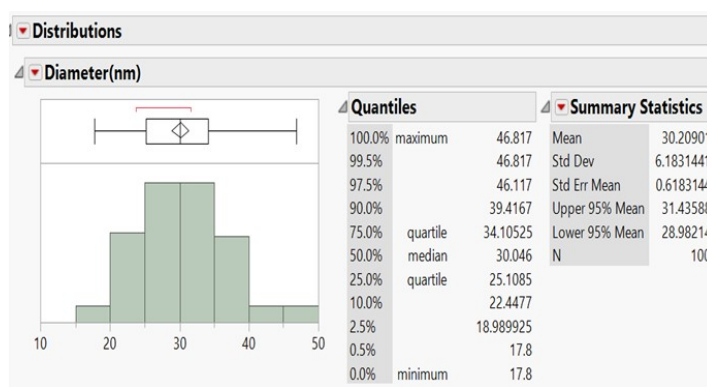

Fig. S2 The statistical information for describing the diameter of nanowires.