Persistent glutathione-depleting MFO@MIL nanoreactors enhance antitumor efficiency of skin scaffold

Wenjing Yang<sup>1</sup>, Yibing Ji<sup>1</sup>, Lang Li<sup>1</sup>, Chenhang Ding<sup>1</sup>, Wurikaixi Aiyiti<sup>2</sup>, Feilong Xiong<sup>1,*</sup>, Cijun Shuai<sup>1, 3*</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Jiangxi Provincial Key Laboratory of Additive Manufacturing of Implantable Medical

Device, Jiangxi University of Science and Technology, Nanchang 330013, China

<sup>2</sup> College of Mechanical Engineering, Xinjiang University, Urumqi 830017, China

<sup>3</sup> State Key Laboratory of Precision Manufacturing for Extreme Service Performance,

College of Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, Central South University, Changsha

410083, China

*Corresponding authors: Cijun Shuai, E-mail: shuai@csu.edu.cn; Feilong Xiong, E-mail: xiongfeilong@jxust.edu.cn.

Figure S1. XRD patterns of MIL and MFO@MIL.