S.No.	Type of settlement	Code
1	Apartment	Multi-storied buildings with several housing units, occupied by high and middle-income families. Those residing in the individual housing units may be owners or may be on lease.

2	Low-income settlement	Multi-storied buildings with several housing units, occupied by high and middle-income families. Those residing in the individual housing units may be owners or may be on lease. Cluster of several small housing units occupied by low-income households. Construction is mostly temporary or semi-permanent. Mostly, these settlements are found on government-owned common land and, sometimes, on privately owned land, paying rent.
3	Long-term resident settlements	Areas occupied by the long-term residents, who have been living in the town for several generations, are identified by the key informants in the town, namely elected representatives and officials of local governments, and community leaders. These settlements include independent houses of varying sizes and comprise all income groups.
