

Figure a. Experiment results indicate that droplet sizes are mainly controlled by the width of the pinch junction due to the shear force applied.