

Supplementary Information

Transdermal delivery of insulin using a solid-in-oil nanodispersion enhanced by arginine-rich peptides

Yoshiro Tahara^{#a}, Shota Honda^{#a}, Noriho Kamiya^{a,b} and Masahiro Goto^{*a,b,c}

^aDepartment of Applied Chemistry, Graduate School of Engineering, and ^bCenter for Future Chemistry, Kyushu University, 744 Moto-oka, Fukuoka 819-0395, Japan.

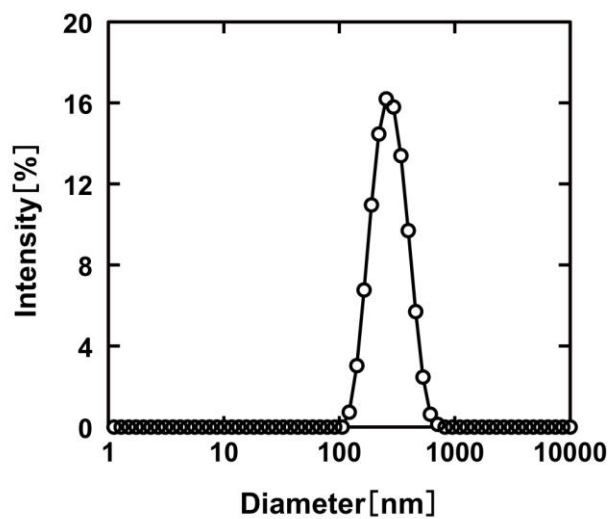

^cSO Pharmaceutical Corporation, 1-5-2 Minatojima-minamimachi, Kobe 650-0047, Japan

[#]These authors contributed equally to this work.

*Correspondence should be addressed to Masahiro Goto (E-mail: m-goto@mail.cstm.kyushu-u.ac.jp)

Supplementary figures

a) S/O nanodispersion without R9

b) S/O nanodispersion with R9

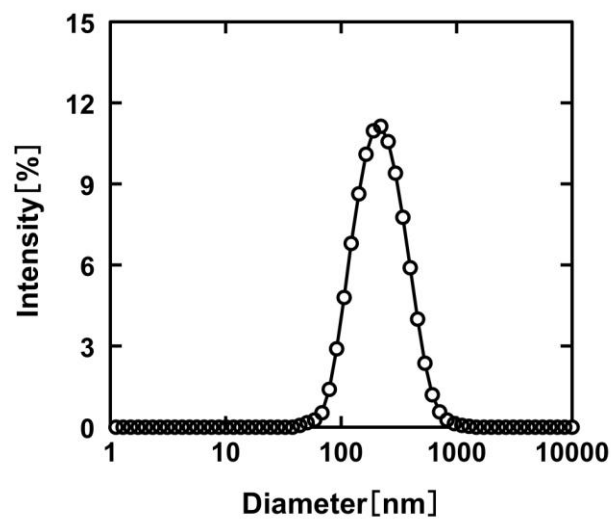

Fig. S1 Size distribution of S/O nanodispersions containing insulin (a) without and (b) with R9.